

RECTIFY GROUP

Modern Slavery Policy Statement

Prepared for Rectify Group Pty Ltd and the business divisions operating under Rectify, Rectify Infrastructure and R-GEO, where formally adopted.

Policy Statement

Rectify Group is committed to preventing modern slavery within its operations, supply chains, and all business relationships. We recognise that modern slavery is a serious violation of human rights and can occur in many forms, including forced labour, child labour, human trafficking, debt bondage, and exploitative or discriminatory labour practices.

Our organisation adopts a zero-tolerance approach to modern slavery and is committed to conducting business ethically, transparently, and responsibly. We expect the same standards from all contractors, suppliers, and partners who engage with Rectify Group.

Understanding Modern Slavery

Modern slavery refers to situations where individuals are exploited and unable to leave due to coercion, threats, deception, or abuse of power. It can occur in both direct operations and extended supply chains, particularly where labour conditions are not visible or properly controlled.

In industries such as construction, manufacturing, logistics, and chemical supply, risks may arise through subcontracting arrangements, overseas sourcing, or complex labour structures. These risks may not always be immediately visible, which is why awareness and proactive management are critical.

Our Commitment

Rectify Group is committed to identifying, assessing, and addressing modern slavery risks across all areas of the business. This includes:

- Maintaining ethical procurement and sourcing practices
- Monitoring supplier performance and labour conditions
- Ensuring fair treatment of workers across all operations
- Acting promptly where risks or concerns are identified

We actively integrate modern slavery risk management into our Integrated Management System (IMS), including our Risk Register, procurement processes, incident reporting system, and management review framework.

Expectations of Contractors and Suppliers

All contractors, subcontractors, and suppliers working with Rectify Group are expected to operate in accordance with applicable laws and ethical labour standards.

This includes ensuring that:

- Workers are of legal working age
- Employment is voluntary and free from coercion
- Wages and benefits meet legal and industry standards

- Working hours are reasonable and compliant
- Workers are treated with dignity and respect
- There is no discrimination, harassment, or exploitation

Suppliers must also ensure that these standards are upheld within their own supply chains.

Rectify Group reserves the right to assess, review, and verify supplier practices and may require declarations or supporting information as part of our due diligence process.

Supply Chain and Risk Awareness

Rectify Group operates in areas that involve procurement of materials, equipment, and services, including chemicals, PPE, and subcontracted works. Some of these supply chains involve international sourcing, which may present higher risks of modern slavery.

We take a risk-based approach to identifying and managing these risks. This includes:

- Assessing suppliers during onboarding
- Considering country-of-origin risks
- Monitoring supplier performance over time
- Reviewing procurement decisions to ensure ethical sourcing

Where higher-risk areas are identified, additional controls and scrutiny are applied.

Training and Awareness

Rectify Group provides training and awareness to ensure that employees and contractors understand modern slavery risks and their responsibilities.

This includes:

- Induction training for new personnel
- Regular toolbox talks and operational briefings
- Ongoing awareness through internal communication

Training focuses on recognising risk indicators, understanding ethical obligations, and knowing how to report concerns.

Reporting Concerns

All personnel, including contractors and suppliers, are expected to report any concerns or suspicions relating to modern slavery.

Examples of concerns may include:

- Unusual or unclear labour arrangements
- Workers who appear controlled, fearful, or unable to communicate freely

- Subcontracting practices that lack transparency
- Evidence of underpayment or poor working conditions

Concerns can be raised through supervisors or the Rectify Group incident reporting system.

All reports will be treated seriously, investigated appropriately, and managed in accordance with our IMS processes.

Response and Accountability

Where modern slavery risks or breaches are identified, Rectify Group will take appropriate action. This may include:

- Investigating the issue
- Engaging with the supplier or contractor
- Implementing corrective actions
- Monitoring outcomes to ensure effectiveness

Where risks cannot be adequately controlled, Rectify Group may suspend or terminate business relationships and, where necessary, escalate matters to relevant authorities.

Monitoring and Continuous Improvement

Rectify Group continuously monitors the effectiveness of its approach to modern slavery through:

- Internal audits
- Supplier reviews
- KPI tracking
- Management review processes

We are committed to continuously improving our systems, processes, and awareness to strengthen our ability to prevent and address modern slavery risks.

Shared Responsibility

Preventing modern slavery is a shared responsibility. Rectify Group expects all individuals and organisations working with us to:

- Act ethically and responsibly
- Comply with this policy
- Remain vigilant to risks
- Speak up if concerns arise

By working together, we can ensure that our operations and supply chains remain fair, ethical, and free from exploitation.

Rectify Group is committed to conducting business with integrity and respect for human rights at all levels of our organisation and supply chain.
